

Be a Feature SRNA on www.procrna.com

PROCRNA.COM is a growing web resource for CRNAs and SRNAs. An increasing number of Chief CRNAs and clinical CRNAs have bookmarked this site and check frequently for new information. Let them discover you! To become a Feature SRNA, submit an abstract of your major work (do not submit the entire work) along with your personal information. To be included, you must submit ALL of the information required below:
About you:	Name Email address School you attend Graduation date Your CV Your picture Preferred geographic region for employment (i.e., Northwest, South) Special interests. Do you ski, ride a bike, climb mountains.....let us know. Also, is there a particular area of anesthesia that you desire?
About your work:	Abstract of research or major work. DO NOT send the completed document, just an abstract. If you are sending material from a slide presentation, send only the outline form, not the actual slides.
Send to:	Attach the above documents to an email and send to: tom@procrna.com Please re-name the attached documents to include your name. For example, do not send a document titled CV. Rename the document to include your name. for example: pjonesCV

Why participate? You and your work are presented to your professional community. It will be presented on your own web page. In the future, when you apply for a job you can email the employer the URL for the page and all your information, including your CV, is readily available.

At this time, the service is free. My only request is that when you get feedback from your posting on www.procrna.com, please send me an email so that I can document the growth of the Feature SRNA program. Good luck with your studies and your future.
